

WANT NEW TRIAL FOR MURDER CASE

Attorneys Argue in Behalf of Thomas Vance Before Supreme Court.

DECLARE WITNESSES LIED

IMPORTANT DETAILS OF DEATH ARE REHEARSED.

Attorneys for Thomas Vance, convicted wife-murderer, and now in the state prison under sentence of death, argued before the supreme court yesterday for a new trial. It was argued by both that the jury which found Vance guilty of murder in the first degree on November 28, 1928, after a trial before Judge George G. Armstrong of the Third district court, did not have evidence sufficient to base their verdict. W. L. Magnuson of Ogden and John P. Tobin of Salt Lake argued for Vance, and Attorney General A. R. Barnes represented the state. Arguments took all day, and the matter was taken under advisement.

The Vance case created no end of interest at the time and aroused public sentiment as few criminal cases have in recent years. Mrs. Vance was brutally beaten by her husband on November 26, 1928. On the next day Mrs. Vance either took or was given poison, from the effects of which she died at St. Mark's hospital on December 27. Vance was held, charged with administering the poison which caused his wife's death, following threats the day he beat her.

It was upon the testimony of Mrs. Amanda Vance Ward, sister of Mrs. Vance; Lena Vance, a daughter, and Mrs. Clara Wunderlich, a neighbor, that the state depended for a conviction. The jury which tried the case, declared to be one of the most intelligent and representative ever assembled in local courts, found Vance guilty of murder in the first degree, and several jurors declared later that it was Vance himself whose testimony had sealed his fate.

Attorneys Collect Affidavits.

Affidavits were collected after the verdict from Lena Vance and others declaring that Mrs. Amanda Vance Ward had coached her in her testimony, and that she had told untrue things. With these they went before Judge Armstrong and asked for a new trial, but were refused. The case was then appealed to the supreme court.

Important details of the death of Mrs. Vance were rehearsed, and the attorneys for Vance laid particular stress upon the fact that Mrs. Vance had threatened to take her own life rather than give birth to another child, and that when her husband had asked her, on December 27, if she had taken poison, Mrs. Vance replied:

"If I have, you never will know."

Attorney General Barnes declared the fact that Vance had threatened to kill his wife, had poison in his possession, and had the opportunity to put the poison in the glass of water at the bedside of Mrs. Vance, coupled with the dying statement of Mrs. Vance that she had seen her husband leaving the room just before she took a drink of the water which caused her death, pointed to him as the murderer.
